

CONTENT ATTRIBUTION

Clandestin Ecosystem (QRM)

1. Purpose of Attribution

This document defines the rules for attribution and use of content produced within the Clandestin ecosystem, including official documents, token distribution charts, Fairness Law, technical papers, and other ecosystem-related publications (“Content”).

The purpose is to ensure transparency, recognition of authorship, and fair use of shared information, while protecting the integrity of the ecosystem.

2. Rights Granted to Users

- Users are permitted to copy, distribute, and reference the Content in any medium, provided that attribution is properly maintained.
- Content may be translated into other languages, provided the translation clearly states that it is a derivative work and references the original version.
- Non-commercial educational use, research, and analysis of Content are explicitly authorized.
- Users may integrate Content into academic, journalistic, or analytical work with proper citation.

3. Required Attribution Format

Whenever Content is reused or quoted, attribution must include:

- The name of the source: “Clandestin Ecosystem (QRM)”
- The title of the document or material cited
- The publication date or version (if available)
- A direct link to the official source, if distributed digitally

Example citation:

“Clandestin Ecosystem (QRM) – Fairness Law, Version July 21, 2025.”

4. Prohibited Uses

- Content may not be misrepresented, altered, or presented in a way that creates confusion about its origin or meaning.
- Content may not be used to promote fraudulent, deceptive, or competing projects that undermine the integrity of the Clandestin ecosystem.
- Use of Content for commercial exploitation (such as resale, licensing, or paywalled redistribution) is prohibited without explicit authorization.
- Automated republication or mass reproduction of Content without attribution is forbidden.

5. Protective Clauses

- Integrity Clause: Any modification of official Content without the clear label “unofficial” or “derivative” shall be considered falsification and misuse.
- Non-Affiliation Clause: Republishing or quoting Content does not imply endorsement, sponsorship, or partnership with the Clandestin ecosystem.

6. Limitation of Liability

The Content is provided “as is,” for informational purposes only.

- No warranties are given regarding accuracy, completeness, or suitability for any particular purpose.
- The Clandestin ecosystem, its creators, and contributors shall not be held liable for damages arising from the use or misuse of Content.
- Users assume full responsibility for verifying the accuracy and relevance of Content before relying on it.

7. Governing Law & Jurisdiction

These rules are intended to operate globally, independent of any specific jurisdiction. The Clandestin ecosystem is decentralized, and attribution requirements apply equally to all participants.

Disputes regarding attribution or misuse of Content shall be resolved through decentralized arbitration or community consensus, rather than traditional legal forums, whenever possible.